

Full integration between Airzone and your air-conditioning unit

The integration gateway is an electronic element developed by Airzone, together with the leading HVAC manufacturers, which allows complete integration between the zoning system and the air-conditioning unit.

Its use enhances the performance and quality of the system by achieving:

- Minimum time for installation and start up.
- Easier user control, due to the ability to control de equipment from the Airzone Master Thermostat.

- On units with inverter technology, it allows automatic adjustment of the cooling power to the air-conditioning needs of each zone.
- Automatic adjustment of the air flow at the internal unit to the actual demand from each zone, thus reducing noise levels and minimising Bypass use.
